Ambassador to Poland

Luu was the Ambassador to Poland of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam in the early 2000s.<sup>[3][4]</sup>

Ambassador to Israel

Luu is today the Ambassador to Israel of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam. He presented his credentials to Israeli President Shimon Peres as the first Vietnamese Ambassador to Israel on July 8, 2009.<sup>[1][5]</sup> Diplomatic relations had been established between the two countries in 1993.<sup>[5]</sup> The Vietnam Embassy in Israel, where he is based, is at 4 Weizman Street in Tel Aviv.<sup>[6]</sup>

In January 2010, Luu said that it was key for Israel to increase its cooperation with Vietnam via its strong wherewithal in high-potential high-tech areas such as information technology, aerospace, and biological technologies applied to agriculture to boost farming productivity, which were important areas in Vietnam's modernization.<sup>[7][8]</sup>

In September 2011, he and Vietnamese Ministry of Defence Deputy Minister Lieutenant General Truong Quang Khanh led a working delegation from the defense ministry in a visit to Israel.<sup>[9]</sup> In July 2012, he spoke of strong ties between Vietnam and Israel, and the possibilities for initiating future partnerships.<sup>[1]</sup>

In September 2012, Luu said that friendship and cooperation between Israel and Vietnam had its roots in a meeting in 1946 between Democratic Republic of Vietnam Prime Minister and President Ho Chi Minh and David Ben-Gurion.<sup>[2]</sup> He also said that trade between the two countries had risen to $660 million in the first eight months of 2012.<sup>[2]</sup> He spoke of cooperation between the two countries in agriculture, water technologies, IT, telecommunication, education, and homeland security.<sup>[2]</sup>
